Yes, we have to choose how we reacted to another person's words. My mother always told me just to walk away and to not retaliate but the harm is usually done long before I walk away. We can let words roll off our backs but that takes a really strong person to listen to the things that another person dislikes about them and not take it to heart.

Use Your Words

Begin to choose the words that you speak consciously. Practice improved self-awareness over the words that you use to describe yourself and your life. Negative, powerless words such as 'can't', 'shouldn't', 'need', 'won't' should all be avoided. They strip you of your ability to manifest a life that you want to live.

The Power Of Words: How Words Impact Your Life

If you send your child to a private school, it is most likely that she will be in a small class. Independent schools often have class sizes that range from 10 to 15 students, depending on grade. Parochial schools have slightly larger class sizes typically in the 20 to 25 student range.
