You jump out of supercruise flight to investigate, only to come face to face with a huge alien ship that locks your systems. It's impossibly big, and the more you look at it, you see that it's not being masked by space - space is being masked by it. That's one of the more terrifying experiences out there in Elite Dangerous, Frontier's space sim that originally launched back in 2014.

The three most expensive ships in the game, the Anaconda, the Federal Corvette, and the Imperial Cutter, will almost always trump the lower-cost ships, but they're relatively unattainable until you've forged a name for yourself in Elite: Dangerous. Other than the big three, there are plenty of other ships to choose from.
