The TIFF Cinematheque series Transcendental Style: Spirituality in the Films of Bresson, Dreyer and Ozu begins on Saturday, April 8. No art form would seem less suited to expressing the transcendent, of eliciting and refining what Calvin called the sensus divinitatus, than cinema. The medium’s fealty to narrative and realism, the high cost and collaborative nature of its “apparatus,” and its reliance on complex technology all dictate against the pure, individual expression of the ...
